99P OR EFB; SURVIVING AND THRIVING – BY JACK SILBERRAD

With experience managing hundreds of colonies in environments as diverse as heather moors, London rooftops, and Manuka hills in New Zealand, Jack now runs his own colonies in Cambridgeshire, where he is the resident bee inspector. A microbiologist academically and passionate for community outreach, he works tirelessly for healthy bees where in 2022 he diagnosed ~10% of all European Foulbrood in England & Wales. From dispelling rumours and myths surrounding the NBU's operations, recounting adventures with the 'Typhoid Mary' of Cambridgeshire, and sharing new findings and best practice, Jack hopes to deliver an entertaining and refreshing insight as to just why on Earth any beekeeper would want to spend their days elbow deep in EFB.

TOM WILLIAMSON, DAERA Senior Bee Inspector

An update on the health of Northern Ireland Honeybees and an update on the Asian Hornet.
